

Probably the most important PKI event of 2015 was a success

As previously advertised PrimeKey hosted “probably the most important PKI event of 2015” a few weeks ago. During two intensive days some of the brightest minds in the PKI community worldwide met in Stockholm. PrimeKey PKI Tech Days 2015 attracted some of the brightest minds in IT Security, system integration and authentication, as well as other professionals familiar with EJBICA. PrimeKey showed its latest product developments for the PKI Appliance, EJBICA and SignServer. Both partners and customers shared use cases. This was followed by many discussions between professional colleagues.

Tomas Gustavsson, CEO of PrimeKey Solutions and the man behind the event, was very satisfied. Tomas says: “Based on a survey conducted among the attendees Tech Days will be back 2016 and probably even more tech savvy. The attendees especially appreciated technical use cases, techie discussions and PKI roadmaps, among other stuff. And everybody wants more so the next time I want the event to be even more hard core PKI”.

“Unfortunately we had to turn a lot of potential attendees away, we filled up the venue in less than a week. We even got attendees splitting the event, taking one day each. Besides underestimating the interest for this kind of event it is also proof for a solid interest in PrimeKey Solutions, our technology and our products in the marketplace”, concludes Tomas.
